

THE GAME OF FOOTBALL.

LIST OF PLAYERS IN SATURDAY'S GAME.

Secretary Corbett Gives a Description of the Game as it Should Be Played Here.

As a football match is out of the usual line of everyday occurrences in Honolulu, a representative of the Star interviewed Secretary Corbett at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this morning and obtained the following points about the game as it is now played, and as it will be played on Saturday next:

A team consists of eleven men and is usually divided into seven rushers or forwards, who stand in a line facing their opponents; a quarter-back, who stands just behind this line; two half-backs, a few yards behind the quarter-back; a full back, or goal tender, who stands a dozen yards or so behind the half-back. On general principles, the movement of a football team in play may be likened to a body of water—always seeking a level. Thus the positions undergo constant change according to the exigencies of the moment.

When the two teams line up after tossing up for choice of position and possession of the ball, the holders of the ball place it in the exact center of the grounds, which should measure 330 feet long and 160 feet wide. The opposing team must stand back off the ball at least ten yards until the ball has been set in play. This is usually done by a player touching the ball to his foot and then passing it to some runner of his own side behind him while the forwards mass in the form of a wedge or V. As soon as the ball is touched the opposing team may charge, and it falls to the duty of the rushers to break up this wedge, so as to get at the runner as speedily as possible. As soon as the ball is held the runner cries "Down," and a new play starts by the center rushing placing the ball on the ground and snapping back to the quarter-back, who in turn passes it to the half or full backs, who either kick or run with it as the signal calls for. The game thus goes on in a series of downs. In order to prevent one side continually having possession of the ball one of the rules reads that if in three "downs" or attempts to advance the ball is not moved five yards toward the goal, or has retreated twenty yards toward their own goal, they lose possession of it. When a team carries the ball behind its enemies' goal line a touch-down has been secured and one of the players brings the ball out a few yards for another of his side to attempt to kick a goal. The time of play is limited to two half-hours or three-quarters, with an intermission of ten minutes for rest.

The side scoring the largest number of points during the game is declared the victors. Points are made as follows: A touch-down counts four, and is made when the ball is carried by one team over the goal line of the other. It also gives the victorious team a free chance of kicking at goal. If the ball is kicked between or over the goals, it counts two more. If the ball is fairly kicked from the field, through the goals, without a previous touch-down, it counts five points. Two points are also allowed for a "safety-touch" which may be forfeited by one team to the other when either is in danger of losing a touch-down. This gives the losing team the privilege of taking the ball twenty-five yards back from the line.

The names, positions and weights of the players for Saturday's game are as follows:

DISTRICT COURT APPEALS.

A Correspondent Agrees With Judge Hartwell's Views.

EDITOR STAR:—I have been much interested in the recent controversy between Messrs. Hartwell and Ashford about the enormous number of appeals to the Circuit Court from Judge Foster's decisions. There can be no question that there is a screw loose somewhere when out of seventy-eight cases on the criminal calendar of the Circuit Court sixty-two are from the District Court and, with two or three exceptions, all from the Honolulu district. There is something wrong somewhere when these sixty-two cases have to be tried in two Courts before a final decision can be obtained. I notice in the civil suits the same trouble obtains but not to such an extent as in criminal cases, for out of sixty-six civil suits on the present Circuit Court calendar sixteen are appeals from the Honolulu District Court, a proportion out of all reason considering the very small amount of civil business that comes before the latter Court. It seems to me that the jurisdiction of the District Court in criminal and other such cases should be either enlarged or reduced. Either give them jury trial in the lower Court or send them to the upper one in the first instance and make all appeals put up a cash bond as Judge Hartwell suggests. The subject is one that seems to require remedying at once. UNLOOKER.

the Paradise of the Pacific be continued from July 1st to December 31, 1893, and that the Minister of Finance be empowered to pay up such bills heretofore referred to the committee as he may deem proper and just. On motion the report of the Finance Committee was adopted.

Minister Damon made a further statement of the present financial condition of the Government, not necessarily for publication, but for the information of the Councils, showing that bills of the quarter ending March 31st there only remained unpaid the sum of $4114. For the quarter ending June 30th bills amounting to $990 were unpaid. The money to pay these bills has long been in the Treasury, but creditors have not called for it. The total indebtedness for July amounted to $38,422.81. If the Government paid every bill it owed to the 31st of July it would still have $76,093.75 in the Treasury.

Minister Damon then read a long report from the Postmaster-General, relating to his visit to postoffices on this island and suggesting certain improvements in the mail service.

Mr. Hatch from the Judiciary Committee reported a substitute to the bill to regulate peddling. The new bill prohibits any peddling of foreign products or manufactured articles under a fine of not less than $100 or more than $200. The bill excepts those who now hold licenses under chapter 49 of the Laws of 1874, until the expiration of the license. On motion, the report was accepted to be considered with the bill and placed on the order of the day for next meeting.

The second reading of the act defining the powers and duties of the Executive and Advisory Councils then came up, and on motion of Mr. Brown was laid on the table, after some discussion.

The military bill was then taken up and was being discussed as the STAR went to press.
